Production. Fabrication. Quality assurance.

Trust the technology leader.

Quality you can count on.

Rosenbauer aerial ladders are high-tech products at the highest technical level. Production is done in a synchronized line assembly by experts, the large majority of whom we have trained ourselves. Quality monitoring is ensured through automated inspections and integrated quality gates – regardless of whether small components or entire vehicles are concerned.

Since many employees are themselves experienced firefighters, each expert lends years of experience to our developments and competent support services. From the beginning to the end of a project, comprehensive support and constant exchange with the customer ensure that all requirements for the individual design of aerials are fully and completely satisfied. The result is a true customer focus. And real satisfaction.
